Celebrating John (Jerry) R. Bartholomew, MD in his 2023 Retirement

Dr. Bartholomew is a giant in the field of vascular medicine and a must-know leader of the SVM

After training in internal medicine (at Maryland General Hospital now part of University of Maryland Medical System) and hematology (at Johns Hopkins University), Dr. Bartholomew started his clinical practice at St. Joseph Hospital at Michigan State University. He was then recruited by Dr. Jess Young (SVM's founding President) to the then Department of Vascular Medicine at the Cleveland Clinic in 1988. The rest, as they say, is history. He spent the next 35 years building one of the largest, preeminent vascular medicine programs in the world as a faculty member and ultimately its Section head. READ MORE

New SVM Executive Director

We are happy to welcome Marty Roth as the new Executive Director for SVM. Marty has 14 years of experience in association management. We welcome him as he joins Sandy Addison in managing our society! We would also like to thank Matt Helms, who has helped steer us for the past two years. Matt is moving on but will be missed!

SVM Committees and Leadership

There is a LOT going on with all our Committees and Task Forces. So many of you are volunteering, either brainstorming ideas or executing on dozens of projects that support the society's mission. We will be highlighting specific projects, so be on the lookout!

Also, SVM is reporting that 100% of the SVM Board of Trustees and committee leadership have completed DEI competence training. Sometimes the little, visible, things matter too.

The Situation Room at VSS 2023

Our friends at Pfizer-BMS wanted us to make sure that you knew that this year, SVM hosted "The Situation Room", where a select group of SVM Members gathered to discuss unique cases in an unstructured environment.
